"A commercially grounded coach and TRE® practitioner, helping leaders and teams build regulation, resilience and sustainable performance."

Profile

Part of the BHD Asia team, Rina Ho is an executive coach, leadership-development professional and TRE® practitioner with more than 25 years of experience across Sony, Reebok and adidas. She brings a commercially grounded, warm and appropriately challenging style — helping clients deepen self-awareness, strengthen regulation, and create meaningful shifts that support both leadership effectiveness and sustainable performance.

Corporate & Leadership Experience

Rina's career spans business strategy, marketing, product creation, merchandising and retail operations across Asia Pacific and Greater China. As Vice President at adidas, she led the company's largest business unit in the region — accountable for go-to-market strategy and execution that drove market share, revenue, retail profit and brand equity across omnichannel.

She is adept at navigating complex, multicultural matrix organisations, fostering collaboration and building high-performing teams, and works fluently across cultures and levels.

Coaching & TRE® Practice

Rina coaches senior leaders to broaden perspective, build trust and make practical shifts that strengthen both leadership effectiveness and business outcomes. As a TRE® practitioner, she supports clients in developing greater body awareness, self-regulation and resilience — bringing a practical somatic approach to stress management and sustainable leadership.

Working in English and Mandarin, she has coached leaders across consumer goods, automotive, oil and gas, electronics and pharmaceuticals.
